ROBBINS CLAIMS RE-ENACTMENT OF GRAIN MEASURE

Counsel for Chicago Board of Trade Declares Court Erred.

ESSENTIALLY SAME

Claims Members Deprived of Property Without Due Process of Law.

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 26. — The grain future act "re-enacts verbatim" regulatory provision of the former law, which was found unconstitutional by the U. S. supreme court today on appeal in which the constitutionality of the present law is attacked.

"The lower court erred in not holding that the new law and the former law are essentially the same," Mr. Robbins argued. "The law violates the constitution because in it congress attempts to regulate commerce which is wholly intrastate in character; it interferes with the legislative discretion of the states respecting their intrastate commerce, and is in violation of the Tenth amendment to the constitution."

Further unconstitutionality was claimed in that section six of the law attempts to create a crime and to confer on a commission composed of officials appointed by the president judicial power to try and to punish violation of the law.

Under the new law grain exchanges are compelled to admit to membership representatives of farmers' cooperative association and to permit them to rebate commission back to their members. This, Mr. Robbins contended, violated the constitution "in that it deprives the exchange," as well as its individual members, of their property without due process of law."

"In the past," Mr. Robbins continued, "members of these associations have been refused admission to membership in this board because their avowed purpose was to violate one of its rules prescribing the rates of commissions to be charged by members when acting as agents. This would destroy the business of those of its members who receive grain on consignment for sale. The bill avers that the ultimate effect would be to much impair, if not destroy, the value of all memberships, and make it difficult for the board to retain sufficient members to pay the assessments necessary to maintain the exchange."

Counsel contended that the removal of an obstruction to interstate commerce, as proposed by the law, as a "more pretext, under which congress seeks to regulate what is exclusively intrastate commerce."

Recitals in section three concerning alleged market manipulation were denied. No corners have occurred in fifteen years. Mr. Robbins declared, submitting charts and records to prove this statement.

"Futures trading never has been successfully resorted to for the purpose of manipulating or controlling and thereby depressing the price of grain," Mr. Robbins said. "Such selling for future deliveries does not result in causing the prices to be abnormally depressed. On the contrary, future trading has materially stabilized prices and caused fluctuations to become less sudden and less violent than before future trading began."

In the record submitted were affidavits of twenty-two professors of political economy in leading universities showing the benefits of futures trading and the present marketing system and declaring that futures traders did not impose a burden on interstate commerce as claimed in the act.

(By the Associated Press)

Other speakers to appear at the meetings, which are planned to continue indefinitely, are Al Smith, governor of New York, and Bishop Michael Gallagher of Detroit. Plans will be made for launching a general fight by calling national anti-klan convention which is expected to be held in Chicago probably in May. The meetings will be non-partisan, it is said.

CITY READY TO ASSIST COUNTY ELECTION FRAUD BLAMED TO EAST ST. LOUIS KLAN

Fisher Claims Cooperation of
Two Departments aid in Curbing Crime.

All parties arrested last week through the concentrated efforts of city and county law enforcement departments and who were taken before the federal commissioner's court at Coalgate are now bound over to the action of the federal court which convenes at Vinila.

Five parties were arrested last week through the co-operation of city and county officials and were taken to Coalgate for appearance before the U. S. commissioner.

Liquor misdemeanors and prohibition charges of any nature will be filed in county court as long as the city is assured of prosecution to the full extent of the law, according to Mayor W. H. Fisher.

Mayor Fisher announced that complete co-operation now existed between the city police department and the sheriff's office and that the county would find the city department ready at all times to assist in the curbing of law violations. Fisher commended the ready assistance offered by the county sheriff's force in recent liquor raids and sounded the keynote for further co-operation.

Mayor Fisher also stated his intention of co-operating with County Attorney J. W. Dean by filling all matters above petty misdemeanors with Dean's promise of full co-operation and prosecution of all parties arraigned from city charges.

LONE DEFENDANT IN ARDMORE ROW ORDERED APPEAR

Judge Overrules Motion of Jeff Smith's Attorney for Joint Trial.

SMITH PLEADS ILLNESS

Prosecution Regards Case of Smith Strongest of all Charged.

(By the Associated Press)
ARDMORE, Feb. 26.—Jeff Smith of Healdton, charged with murder in connection with the killing of Joe Carroll, an alleged bootlegger at Wilson in a fight with a band of masked men on the night of December 15, 1921, was placed on trial in district court today for the second time.

At Smith's first trial a month ago the jury failed to reach a verdict. The cases of nine prominent business and professional men of Ardmore jointly charged in connection with the killing, was passed over for the time being, County Attorney John L. Hodges electing to call Jeff Smith's case first. The case against J. B. (Curley) Smith, the eleventh defendant, also went over.

The prosecution regards the case against Jeff Smith as its strongest and will seek a verdict against him before bringing the others to trial. J. W. Byrns, attorney for Smith, asked to waive the severance granted before the first trial and requested that he be tried jointly with the others. Judge W. F. Freeman overruled the motion and an exception was entered.

Byrns then announced that Smith was ill of influenza and not ready to go to trial. Smith was present in court and the judge overruled the motion, saying that a proper showing had not been made to justify a delay. The selection of the jury then began.

ELECTION FRAUD BLAMED TO EAST ST. LOUIS KLAN

(By the Associated Press)

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Feb. 26.—Chief of police Mulcahy announced today that Ben O. Morrow, arrested Saturday on a charge of distributing anonymous election campaign literature, made a signed statement under oath that he had been employed by the Ku Klux Klan at $10 per day to act as "precinct committeeman." Chief Mulcahy stated that he has information that the Klan plans to "carry the election at any cost."

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch has been running articles to the effect that a slate had been made for tomorrow's municipal primary for the nomination of mayor and four city commissioners to be selected at that time and that those endorsed by the Klan have pledged themselves to appoint only Protestants and klansmen to office, in case they are elected.

BANDIT HOLDS UP PASSENGER TRAIN

Lone Robber Seizes One
Package of Registered
Mail.

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Theft of registered mail valued at several thousand dollars between Syracuse and New York several days ago was reported today. The robbery, it was said, was similar to that which occurred at the Grand Central terminal yesterday.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—A lone bandit held up the through mail train from San Francisco and Chicago and made a successful get away. This is the third time within two months that this train has been robbed.

Both police and postal inspectors scout the idea that the robbery was an "inside" job, declaring that they believe the robber had boarded the train at some upstate point. The bandit's sole loot in this robbery was a registered package mailed at Chicago.

The robber was discovered by track walkers making his way out of the railroad yards with a small mail pouch. They gave chase calling officers to their aid, but by dodging over electrically charged third rails, through railroad yards and around obstructions, he finally succeeded in eluding his pursuers.

"Hate Diary" Notes for Story Says Woman Held for Murder

Mrs. Lucille Kavanagh.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—The state is depending on an alleged "diary of Hate" to put a noose around the pretty neck of Mrs. Lucille Kavanagh and spring the trap which will cast her into eternity.

Mrs. Kavanagh, widow of P. H. Kavanagh, former treasurer of the National Athletic club, is young and very fair to look upon. Her eyes radiate an impression of childish wistfulness.

But police say they mirror an untrue expression of her soul, the soul, they say, of a cold, calculating murderess.

Kavanagh was shot to death some time back. There were no witnesses so far as police have been able to ascertain, except Mrs. Kavanagh. And she disappeared soon after the killing.

In searching the Kavanagh premises police found what they declare is a "Diary of Hate." And the author, they charge, is Mrs. Lucille Kavanagh.

Police believe the notes in the diary substantiate their theory that Kavanagh was murdered.

They took up the search for Mrs. Kavanagh with renewed vigor, but while the searchers combed the city Mrs. Kavanagh calmly strolled into criminal court and gave herself up.

She told the authorities that the shooting of her husband was accidental, purely so, and that she was in no way responsible.

Then police confronted her with the "Diary of Hate." And Mrs. Kavanagh, facing a murder charge, laughed, actually laughed.

"Why, those are only the notes for a short story," she explained to police. "Where in the world did you get the idea it was a diary? How absurd."

But police say they are willing to let a jury decide that question.

CONGRESS TAKES UP NEW MEASURE

Arkansas Senator Opposes
Allied Council; Ship
Bill Pending.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—A resolution carrying out the administration's suggestion for the participation of America in the membership of an international court of justice to be organized by the League of Nations, was introduced in the senate today by Senator King, Democrat, of Utah. There was no decision on the matter and it went over indefinitely.

Senator Robertson, Democrat, of Arkansas, acting Democratic leader, gave out a formal statement saying that he entertained a feeling of friendliness for the administration's plan, but that it indicated a "policy of half-heartedness and timidity in the administration's foreign relations."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Congress went into high gear today in an endeavor to clear at least a part of the pre-adjournment legislative jam during this, the last week of the life of the present congress.

The senate after attending the "obsequies" of the administration shipping bill, has cleared the way for action on the more important bills and resolutions now pending, while the house will take up the first deficiency bill and the farm credit legislation as the first of about 100 measures that stand some chance of attention during the final days.

The jam in the senate is not as severe as in the house.

TIM MURPHY "DRESSED IN" LEAVENWORTH PRISON

(By the Associated Press)
LEAVENWORTH, Kas., Feb. 26.—Timothy (Big Tim) Murphy, Chicago labor leader, convicted of complicity in the Dearborn street mail robbery, "dressed in" at the federal prison here at 11 o'clock this morning to begin his sentence. He was given the prison number of 18,990.

SAILORS CREATE REIGN OF TERROR ON SEA LINER

(By the Associated Press)
VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 26.—Nine armed sailors and a number of stowaways on the 6,000 ton steamer Taibu Maru had maintained a reign of terror during the voyage from Kobe to this port, it was learned last night when the vessel arrived here.

A tempestuous trip was revealed when the captain of the vessel wireless to port officers here for help to arrest the mutineers when the ship should reach port.

ROADHOUSE PROPRIETOR SOUGHT FOR KNIFE PLAY

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 26.—Police today were seeking Bob Watson, proprietor of an alleged road house in connection with the death of J. W. Graff at a local hospital. Police alleged that Watson stabbed Graff with a butcher knife.

It is reported that Graff objected to Watson's alleged attitude towards Mrs. Watson and that when Graff attempted to push Mrs. Watson around he interfered.

Following the fight guests took Graff to his room at his hotel and later to the hospital. He died as he reached the hospital.

Police are holding four persons arrested at the house as witnesses. The addresses given were in the exclusive residential section.

When police reached the Watson place they found windows broken and furniture overturned.

Watson has been arrested several times on liquor charges, the police say.

POLICE SEARCH FOR ASSAILANTS

Philadelphia Girls Assaulted
by Men Who Kidnapped Them.

(By the Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 26.—Search for the body of Lillian Gilmore, who with her five-year old sister Dorothy were kidnapped from in front of their home, taken to the outskirts of the city and assaulted, was continued today.

The police had orders to examine all vacant houses, empty box cars and other places where a body might be concealed. The Delaware river and other streams are being dragged.

The condition of Dorothy, who was put out of a motor car after being assaulted, was reported improved today. Dorothy's story leads the police to believe that her sister was killed. She said the men first took Lillian out and finally threw her bleeding body on the ice of the river.

Wylie Morgan, 38, was identified by Dorothy as one of the kidnappers. He is wanted in Texas on a similar charge, the police say. He is said to have formerly lived at Maud, Texas.

Blood stains were found on Morgan's clothing and the rear seat of his auto, police say.

LEGISLATORS ON GRIND TO ENACT STATE MEASURES

Committee Suggests Cement

House Votes Out Disney Motion State Appropriations.

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 26.—The state legislature was expected to take up two important measures today and reach final action. These are the warehouse bill in the senate and the banking bill in the house.

The roll will be called at 6 p. m. on the warehouse measure which carries an appropriation of $1,250,000 to be used in aiding and in the establishment of a system of elevators and warehouses. Several hours of discussion is expected before the vote is taken.

The house as a committee of the whole, is expected to take up the banking measure designed to pay depositors of failed state banks, strengthen the banking law and rehabilitate the guaranty fund. Fred Hansen and J. B. Harper are expected to champion the measure and J. B. Tolbert of Kiowa county to lead the opposition.

The warehouse bill as amended by the senate, creates no political jobs, amendments adopted last week having removes all opportunity of patronage. The senate amendment transfers the operation of the law from the newly created market commission to the state board of agriculture.

Legislators are looking forward to four committee reports this week. They are expected on the following subjects:

Building material prices; the temporary release under guard of Xenophone Jones from the state penitentiary; revision of the state criminal code, making court procedure simpler; building contracts made under terms of bills passed by the last legislature.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 26.—Recommendations that the cement manufacturing, wholesale and retail lumber, crushed stone, sand and gravel industries be declared public utilities and placed under the state corporation commission with power to regulate these industries and fix prices was embodied in a report of the committee appointed to investigate prices of building materials made public today.

A detailed account of the operations of the Ada and Dewey plants was contained in the report which stated that under existing conditions and efficient management cement can be produced at from $1.10 to $1.30 per barrel, while the present price is $2.25.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 26.—Characterizing the administration market commission bill as a "vicious thing" Senator Harry Cordell, senior member of the senate and an enthusiastic farm legislator, asserted today that the senate would not pass the two measures foremost in the administration's support, the market commission bill and the free book bill.

"We are not going to pass the free text book bill and the market commission bill," was Senator Cordell's statement.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 26.—The lower house of the state legislature today voted down a motion by Disney of Muskogee recommending to the house committee on appropriations the senate bill and ordering a 20 per cent reduction in the $7,455,000 provided for departmental maintenance in that measure.

After a debate of two hours the motion was defeated by 4 votes, 47 being cast against it.

Man Brought Here Charged of Grand Larceny at Francis

Charges of grand larceny were filed against Jim Harrison in Justice H. J. Brown's court late Saturday afternoon and his arrest brought about by the sheriff's force during the week-end.

Harrison, who is lodged in the county jail will face trial, charged with stealing an automobile from a school teacher at Francis last May.

The car is alleged to have been taken to Madill and was being held there at the time state guards and a probe was ordered to check the alleged ring of auto thieves.

Several witnesses will be brought from Francis for the preliminary hearing here.

Mrs. Charles A. Kading, recently appointed chairman of the Wisconsin civil service commission, is the first woman in that state to head an important commission.

REACHING THE LIMIT.

"Only the United States can save Europe from bankruptcy," is the declaration which often meets one's eye these days. When everything is simmered down the United States is expected to wipe off the billions these nations already owe this country and then make a lot of new loans. A very benevolent plan, to be sure, but somehow Uncle Sam does not take to it very heartily.

Meanwhile we are told that those beggar nations are calling the United States another Shylock, a tightwad and a few other uncomplimentary things and are coming to look on this country as the author of the woes which now beset them. It is another case of doing a man a special favor today only to have him turn around and demand the same thing as an inalienable right tomorrow with the one favored getting on his ear about it if his demand is not granted.

The trouble is that those countries instead of getting a hustle on themselves and trying to pull out of the hole have just sat down and waited for the United States to pull them out and put them on their feet free to go back to all the old feuds and practices that brought on the last war. Uncle Sam is a patient old guy and is often an easy mark, but this time he has reached the limit of good nature and wants to see some sign of a change of heart on the part of some of his late charges before doing any more for them.

It is nothing short of tragic for a man to so live in this world that when he comes to die he sees nothing out yonder ahead of him but darkness. He dies with a curse on his lips and wants no religious service held at his grave. How different from the man or woman who has lived with an abiding faith in a future life when he or she comes to die, is conscious of God's presence. Instead of things getting darker, everything gets brighter and hope springs eternal as they go out on that long journey. One of old said, "Let me die the death of the righteous and let my last end be like his." It pays to be a Christian.

The past eight years have been the most strenuous passed through by congress in the entire history of the nation. Special sessions followed closely on the heels of the regular ones, hence the national legislative bodies have been in session the greater part of the time. At this time there is no prospect of a called session and the members of the two houses will be free to go their several ways until the first of December. Congress itself, the president and public are thoroughly agreed that no special session is needed and that the country can rock along a few months without one.

The creamery proposition is still very much alive and bids fair to go through. Apparently the next point to be determined is how many cows responsible farmers want. In fact, everything depends on this. Any one interested should see J. B. Hill, county agent, or his banker so that all may be checked up and the number of cows wanted may be ascertained as soon as possible. Here is a good opportunity for all concerned to benefit, for with a constant flow of cream checks, there is no escaping the conclusion that a long step will be taken towards permanent prosperity.

W. R. Hearst has added another paper to his string by purchasing the North Worth Record. The Record has had rather rough sailing during its two decades of existence. With the ample resources of Hearst behind it the Record will probably expand and play a larger part in the development of Texas in general and Fort Worth in particular than has heretofore been possible. D. D. Moore will be in charge of the business.

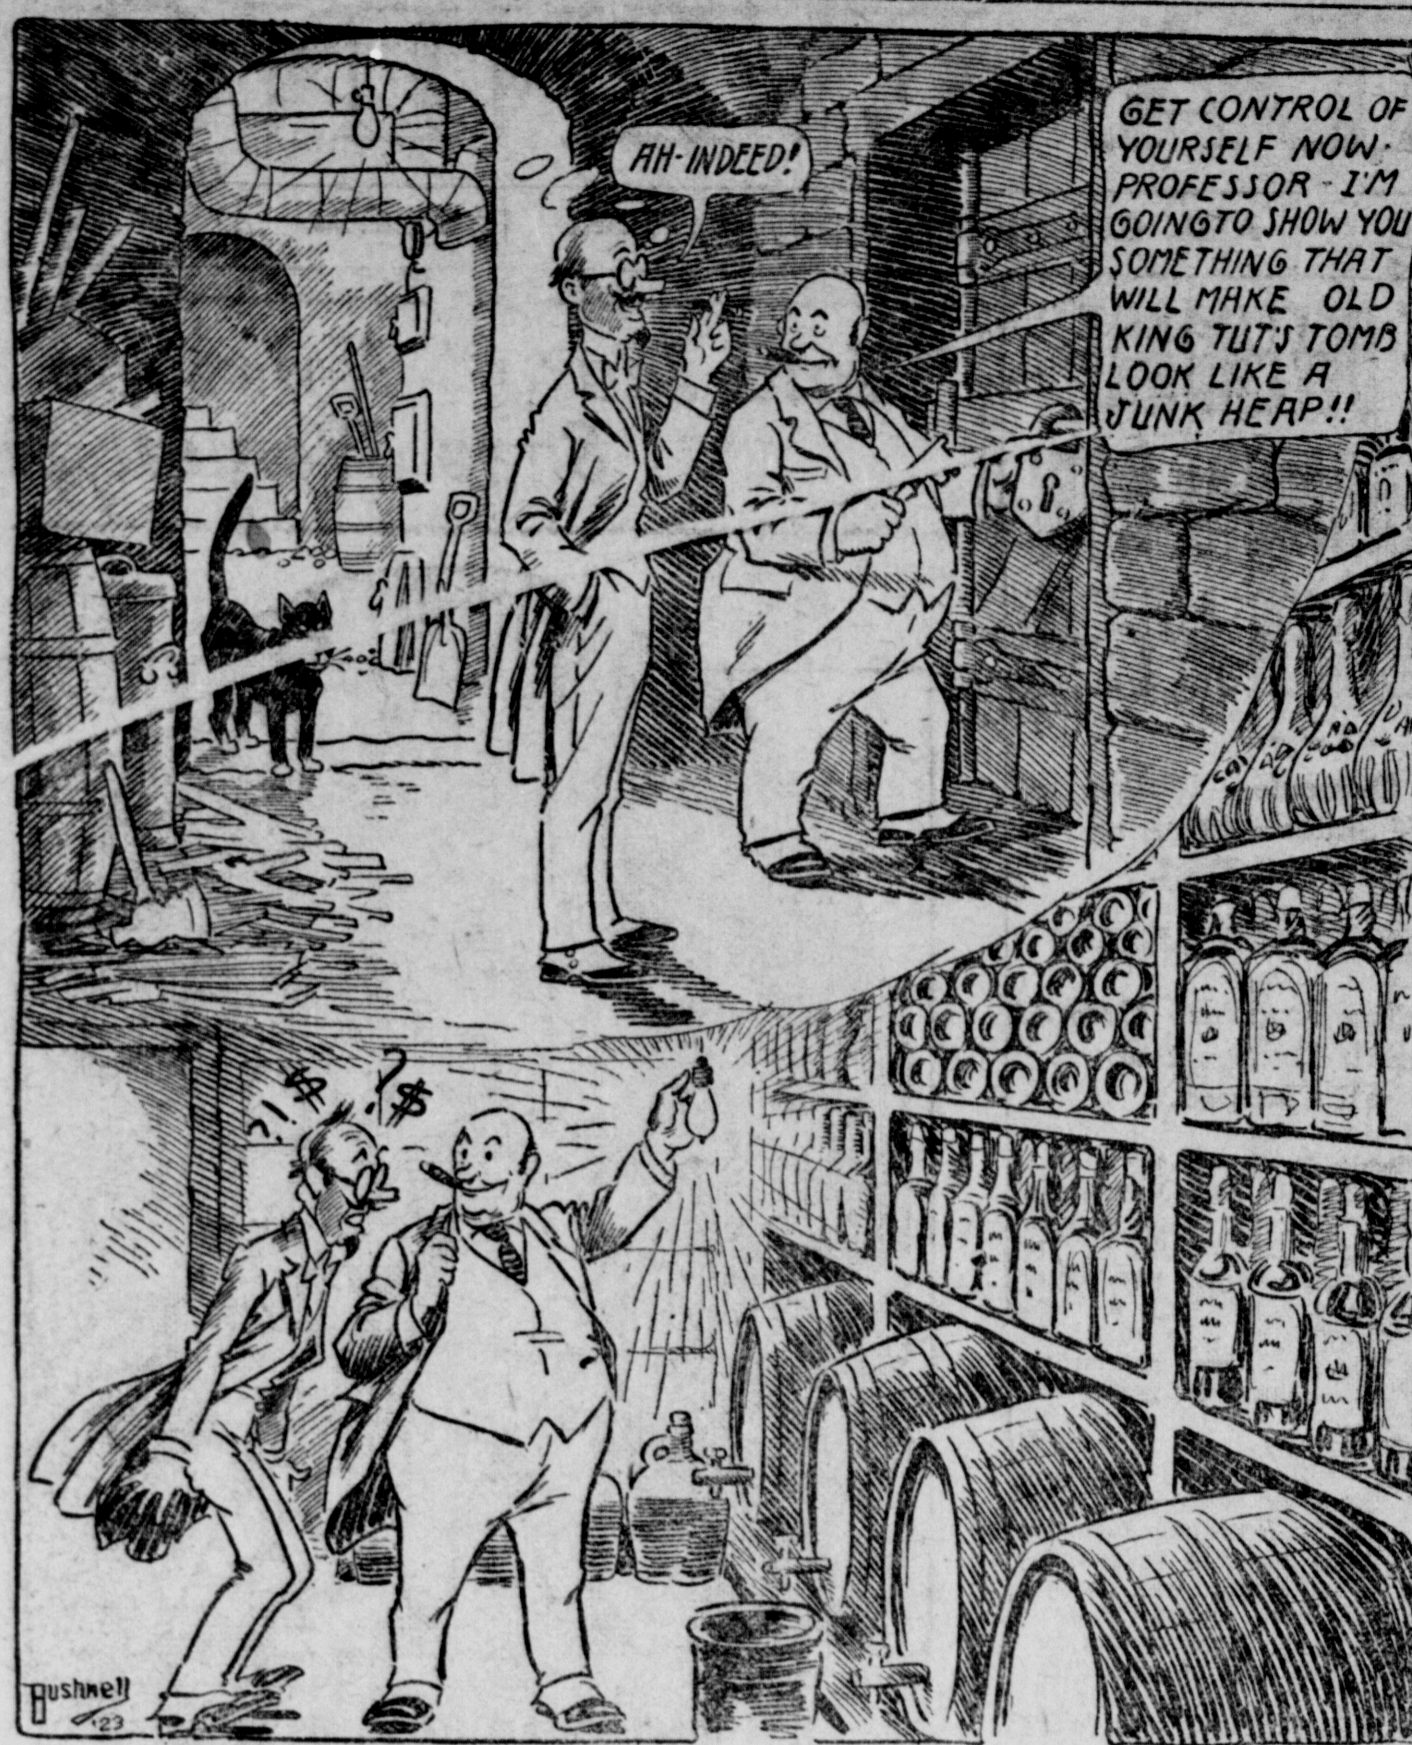

If an end is put to the issuance of tax exempt securities it is highly probable that there will be less propaganda for the issuance of bonds in many places. A faint suspicion lurks in the minds of many that occasionally the supposed public demand for a big issue is instigated by interests that expect to profit by the issue.

In these new days a United States senator had better keep his face straight when making a speech. Recently Vice President Coolidge sustained a point of order against Senator Heflin made by Senator Lodge, saying that it was not what he said so much as it was the manner in which he said it, his facial expression and general attitude that was offensive to the dignity of the senate.

No doubt any member of the legislature will readily agree that the appropriations provided in various bills are altogether too high, but being convinced that his own pet appropriation is vital to the welfare of the state as well as to his own political future, he can't afford to say much about the other fellow's bill.

Mayor Fisher has warned the citizens of the town against permitting chickens to run loose. It is a question of chickens or gardens, for the two don't mix a little bit. Chickens have caused many a row among neighbors and keeping them up is a good way to maintain the peace of a neighborhood.

TO CELEBRATE FLORIDA'S DISCOVERY AT ST. AUGUSTINE

VIEWS IN PONCE DE LEON PAGEANT
Ready for the Ponce de Leon Pageant.

St. Augustine: The discovery of Florida by Ponce de Leon in 1512 will be celebrated here by a pageant, festival, athletic, aquatic and musical program on April 4th, 5th and 6th. Several thousand persons in period costumes will participate in the landing of Ponce de Leon from his ancient canoe in the straits of Fort Marion, the first Spanish stronghold on the North American continent, built in 1565; in the subjugation of the Indians; in the founding of St. Augustine by Menendez in 1565, as well as in the raising of the Stars and Stripes on Fort Marion in 1821.

Florida towns will send large delegations to participate in the pageant which will mark a day of first importance in the history of the United States. Although Florida was discovered 411 years ago its commercial development dates only a generation back. In 1887 Henry M. Flagler of Cleveland started construction of the Ponce de Leon Hotel at St. Augustine, and started the great Florida East Coast Railway that runs down to Key West, traversing the sea for 118 miles. It was only 27 years ago that he began construction on the Hotel Royal Palm, the first building in Miami except an old Indian trading post. Today Miami has a population of 45,000. Florida has a population of over one million. Four and one-half million acres of swamp lands are being reclaimed in the Everglades. A sugar mill has already been erected at a cost of one and one-half million dollars to crush cane grown on the reclaimed land. There are five thousand miles of surfaced roads in the state.

The modern city of St. Augustine here the discovery of this commonwealth will be celebrated has preserved more of the old Spanish architecture than any city in the United States and more than most in South America. It is a starting point for motorists in Florida and records about 500 arriving cars a day in winter season. The climate in April is ideal. The whole country is invited to attend the colorful carnival and sports events for which prizes are offered.

Bebe Daniels Tells How Awkward Women Can Acquire Grace.

To be graceful will make even the plainest girl popular. On the other hand, a most beautiful girl may be unpopular if she is awkward.

That is the assertion of Bebe Daniels, who is featured with Conrad Nagel in Penrhyn Stanlaw's production of "Singed Wings" for Paramount, which will be on view at the McSwain theatre today. In the picture, Miss Daniels is called on to do a beautiful creation, "The Dance of Death." Clothed in the costume of a moth, she dances around a burning candle. A marvelous effect of grace, combined with entrancing lights and shadows, is conveyed to the screen by the dainty star.

TOURISTS FIND CANADIAN SHRINES RICH IN HISTORIC VALUE

A FATHER OF THE CAPUCHIN MONASTERY AT OTTAWA, ONTARIO. NOTRE DAMES DES VICTOIRES—HUMBLE IN APPEARANCE BUT RICH IN HISTORY. RESTORED CHAPEL OF ST. CHARLES AT GRAND PRE, NOVA SCOTIA

Travelers to Europe generally spend a good bit of their time in visiting churches and shrines; those who travel to the Far East make it a point to see as many temples as time and route will permit. Yet, many of these same tourists are quite ignorant that Canada has many churches and shrines whose beginnings date from white man's advent on this continent.

The most widely known one is that of Ste. Anne de Beaupre in Quebec, celebrated since 1657 for its reputed miraculous cures. The main church which was burned last year is being rebuilt, the services being carried on during the interim in the chapels. To Ste. Anne's each summer vast pilgrimages wend their way and the tiny, hillside village overflows with throngs of reverent pilgrims, while booths for the sale of holy relics are set up all over the place. A visit to this shrine at any time will be fraught with interest, for the hourly services, the great gold figure of Ste. Anne and the holy relic are always in evidence. Ste. Anne's is easily reached from Quebec.

For years Evangeline Land in Nova Scotia has attracted many, especially the descendants of the Acadians who were banished from this lovely valley in 1775. The forge, church and a few primitive buildings mentioned in Longfellow's poem, still remain, and the little stone church of St. Charles has been re-created in its original size and form by the Societe L'Assomption as a shrine to the memory of their ill-fated ancestors. Annual pilgrimages have been arranged and Grand Pre will soon become a Mecca for devout Catholics as well as an attraction for painters, poets and lovers of Evangeline. One can scarcely travel a block

AGED SENATOR OF CALIFORNIA DIES

Golden State Statesman Has Stormy Career Before Success.

(By the Associated Press) OAKLAND, Calif., Feb. 26. —Former United States Senator George C. Perkins, 84 died at his home here today.

From ship boy to forty-six years of almost continuous public service, twenty-two years of which were in the United States Senate, was the active life experience of George Clement Perkins. He was in his 84 year, having been born at Kennebunkport, Me., August 23, 1839.

At the age of thirteen, young Perkins left his home at Kennebunkport to become a sailor "before the mast" his first voyage being on a sailing vessel to New Orleans. Thereafter, for a number of years he followed the life of the sea, visiting nearly every port of the world. Touching, finally, in 1855 at San Francisco, he caught the gold fever and turned prospector and miner. He was the first to introduce steam whalers in the Arctic ocean, and operated numerous ships on the Pacific from Alaska to Mexico.

As a country merchant in California, Perkins became interested in politics and was elected to the state senate in 1869 and to the governorship ten years later. In 1893 he was appointed United States Senator to fill the unexpired term of the late Leland Stanford, the appointment being confirmed later by the legislature. Subsequently he was reelected to three full terms.

Mr. Perkins' long experience in seafaring gave him recognition as an authority in the Senate on the many measures relating to maritime affairs and the naval establishment. He was constantly consulted on these subjects, and whenever a question arose on the floor of the Senate regarding some technical point in shipping, by mutual consent it was usually referred to the authoritative judgment of the California senator, who always supplied with the fullest technical details on the subjects. This led to his rapid promotion to positions of influence on the Senate committees on Naval Affairs, Commerce and Appropriations. During the four years preceding the Democratic control of the Senate Mr. Perkins was Chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee and as such became a controlling influence in shipping naval legislation.

The senator gave special attention to improving maritime equipment along the Pacific and Atlantic coasts, and his personal familiarity with the chief water routes led him to secure an exceptional number of lighthouses and warnings for sailors, studied from end to end of the coast. The regularity of Mr. Perkins' attendance in the Senate was almost remarkable, for the record of his 23 years of service shows that he missed but few roll calls.

While he never, as a distinguished person, was presented at any European court, Senator Perkins nevertheless, once stood before royalty. It happened in this manner.

As a young sailor his ship, on one voyage, carried him to Christiania, Norway, where he was granted shore-leave in company with other boys of his own age. The American boys strolled outside the grounds of the royal palace, but were refused admission at all of the gates. Finally, discovering a disused tunnel leading under the moat, they crawled through and continued their walk through the grounds. Soon a great shout was raised, soldiers appeared and the frightened American boys were pounced upon as spies.

The commotion reaching the ears of King Oscar, he ordered that the culprits be brought before him. Then for the first time, the boys were addressed in their own tongue, the King asking them in English why they were intruding. Perkins, who acted as spokesman, gave such a plausible explanation that King Oscar shook hands cordially, dismissed the soldiers and entertained the young Americans for an hour at the palace.

On his retirement from the United States Senate, March 4, 1915, Mr. Perkins returned to his home in Oakland, Cal.

TAKE SALTS IF STOMACH ISN'T ACTING RIGHT

Says Indigestion Results from an Excess of Hydrochloric Acid.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather ferments, the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that indigestion is caused by Hyperacidity, meaning there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflame the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest; we belch up gas; we eructate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink it while it is effervescent, and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief often follows the first dose, it is important to help neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used for many stomach disorders with excellent results.

CHAPTER XI

Confession.

It was very dark and very quiet at the lane's end when Billy at last stirred, and, after an interval of slowly returning consciousness, managed to raise himself dizzily to a sitting position.

He pressed his hands to the side of his head and remained for awhile motionless, conscious of a damp warmth under his left palm. His eyes dwelt on a white, chalky stone, as big as a doubled fist, that lay on the grass beside him. Events began to reconnect themselves in a brain that still buzzed faintly.

"A granite skull," murmured Billy,

RICHES INVOLVED IN WAR ROMANCE

Attempts to Steal Will of Japanese Widow is Cause of Action.

(By the Associated Press)

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia.—Mystery surrounds a recent attempt to steal a will in Belgrade, and the local courts are trying to solve the riddle. The information thus far available points to a war romance in Siberia between a Bosnian soldier and a Japanese woman, and further knowledge is being sought through diplomatic channels at Tokyo.

A thief stole a document from a translation bureau here, and was captured. He admits he did not get what he was after. He says he sought a will made by a Japanese woman in question who is described as wealthy. This man is the authority for the following tale.

Ivan Mrkonja, a Bosnian, 30 years old, belonged to one of the Central Powers and joined with the Russians. When the Bolshevik revolution came and the Russians disbanded the old army, Mrkonja joined one of the wandering bands which fought Bolshevism, and wandered off toward Siberia. He was swept on eastward with the Czechoslovaks whom Trotsky sought to exterminate because they would not join the communists.

Mrkonja's detachment was so hard pressed that he and all his associates fled into the Siberian forests and scattered. In the forests Mrkonja met a Japanese woman wandering alone. She knew little Russian, but managed to tell him that her husband had been killed while fighting the Bolsheviks. She had been condemned to death, but escaped into the forests.

Mrkonja and the woman bought a team and made their way southward into Mongolia. There they found an interpreter, and the woman explained to her rescuer that she was a member of the family of Toganama, and that her husband had left her a valuable silk business. In expression of her gratitude to Mrkonja she asked him to accompany her to Tokyo and take charge of her business. The Bosnian consented and remained in Tokyo for over two years.

He was successful in developing the business, but became homesick for Bosnia and decided to rejoin his wife and child. He confessed to the Japanese widow that he was married. She insisted that he must return to Japan and bring his Bosnian family with him. Also, she is alleged to have made a handwritten will in which he was designated as the sole heir to her estate, said to be worth several million yen.

Mrkonja came to Bosnia. He remained with his family for only a few days, and then suddenly disappeared. His wife in Bosnia does not know where he is, and testimony introduced in the court has not made it clear whether Mrkonja or somebody else placed the much-sought Japanese will in the hands of the translation bureau from which the thief tried to steal it.

The Belgrade police have enlisted the aid of the government which has directed that diplomatic inquiries be made in Tokyo concerning the Toganama family.

OKLAHOMA CITY.—An application of the Canadian Valley Farmers Telephone company to discontinue service to certain of its subscribers on account of alleged abuse of service, has been reinstated by the state corporation commission and will be heard March 6. It had been called Feb. 5 and dismissed because the applicant failed to appear, it was said at the commission, but reinstatement was ordered, when it was shown that all of the applicant's officials who had authority to represent it were ill that day.

not without a touch of pride, "isn't altogether a disadvantage in an argument."

He looked about him thoughtfully. Not far away something gleamed in a rut—a small repeating pistol. His late opponents had evidently left in too much of a hurry to take an inventory of their effects.

"She must have dropped that when the machine crashed," thought Billy. "She loosed it at me when I was riding up. Lucky for me she hadn't it just now. Some girl!"

He heaved himself to his feet unsteadily, made for a ditch where there was a glitter of water, and bathed the tender side of his head. The water revived him; save for a cut under his hair, no serious damage was done, though the blow might easily have cracked a weaker skull.

"I don't see that I shine much, over this job," said Billy despondently; "they sure handed it to me. Got right under my guard. Never thought of a woman sharing in a hold-up; an' yet I guess it's been done before."

He picked up the pistol, was about to pocket it, but altered his mind and flung it in the ditch. The other automatic was nowhere to be seen. Billy walked towards the Sphinx, the headlamp of which was now in darkness. His hand swung against a large lump projecting from the side of his coat. He halted and dragged out the leather case. Billy had forgotten its existence.

"Why, here's something saved from the wreck!" he exclaimed. "They couldn't have seen me get it!"

He dropped on one knee, opened the case, and switched the little electric torch over it.

Billy gave a stifled gasp. On a bed of cream silk velvet reposed a necklace of amethysts, ending in a loop of nine superb emeralds that shone with changing green fires under the torch's glow. Billy was not an expert in gems, but he guessed that these were such as a prince might be proud to own.

"This is the darnedest game I ever was up against," he said dazedly, returning the case carefully to his pocket.

He made a rapid examination of the Sphinx, and at once became aware of Calamity Kate's handiwork. In spite of the best intentions, however, that enterprising lady had overestimated the vulnerability both of Billy's skull and his motorcycle. She had done some damage, but had missed the more vital parts of the Sphinx. After ten minutes' work Billy's capable hands restored the machine to fair running order, and he rode away down the lane. Both lamps were out of action.

Any further pursuit of the thieves he put aside as a useless proposition. He had a vague idea that they had gone hours ago; in fact, however, he had not been unconscious more than a few minutes.

"There's only one thing to do," said Billy, "an' that's—"

A disconcerting thought flashed through his mind. The bumping of the jewel-case against his side suggested it.

"Gee!" he murmured, "I'm Little Boy Blue, all right. But if I was to run against the cops now, it'd take a heap of explanation before they slugged me. My story'd look pretty thin. Jewel-case—motorbike—it only wants one item to complete the outfit!"

He turned on to the high road, rapidly resolving on a plan of action as he rode. It was a good plan, but a few moments later it was hopelessly upset again. He was, as it happened, nearer to Stanhoe than to Jervaux abbey, and as he turned in the direction of the latter Billy became aware of someone running toward him along the road—a dark figure, with a peculiar moving gleam of whiteness about it. He stopped the Sphinx immediately and thrust out his feet to steady himself.

The dark figure checked in its stride, hesitated, and seemed about to bolt back again.

"Partner!" cried Billy in amazement. "Is that you?"

The reply was a wild gasp. Almee, breathless, muddy, with an appreciable breadth of white cambric showing at the base of her skirt, rushed up to him and seized his arm.

"Billy! Oh, I'm so glad—I'm so glad!" she panted. "Billy, I—I'm in an awful mess! The absolute limit!"

"How! Why?"

"I was in a house—and it was burgled!"—guilted Almee, struggling for breath—"they thought it was me—and I scooted—they're chasing me!"

It was not a vividly lucid explanation. But Billy's intelligence department connected with it at once; it supplied the missing factors. Before he could answer, a pair of lights flashed into view far down the road, approaching at speed.

"Car!" exclaimed Almee, and with a note of panic—"Billy, suppose it's police? If so, they'll be looking for me!" She made a dash for the pillar of the Sphinx. "Get me out of this, Billy—start her quick!"

"Not on your life!" said Billy swiftly. "That's the last thing on earth for you now. Come with me."

He ran back fifty yards along the road to a field gate. In a few moments he had it open, thrust the Sphinx through, let her fall behind the hedge, and dragged Almee with him into the ditch. They had hardly gained that cover when the car swept by with a roar, showing a glimpse of police helmets scudding past the low rampart of thorn fence. The majesty of law and order, sweeping inexorably through the night. A rattle, a hoot, and it was gone.

In the ditch there was painful silence. Billy mechanically felt his bulging pocket, glanced for a moment at the Sphinx, and then stared blankly at Almee.

"Close call, partner," he observed. "I thought it must be they," said Almee breathlessly. "I wonder they haven't called out the military as well. All the countryside seems to be chasing me! Billy!" she said, with a suspicious tremble in her voice, "you'll help me, won't you? I'll tell you about it. I—I've kept it from you, but I won't any longer. I—"

Billy laid a hand on her arm.

"Amy," he said quietly, "just repeat this piece to yourself. Say: 'I'm safe, my partner's lookin' after me.' Got that? I'll see you through; you've notin' to worry for at all. But we can't talk here. We've got to beat it." He picked up the Sphinx.

"Follow close after me, an' keep quiet."

He wheeled the machine along the field path at a run, passed through another gate, crossed a stretch of heathery common-land, and made for a small copse at the foot of the slope. Almee trotted behind silently, with an odd sense of relief and security. Billy would see it through. He had said so. He halted by the copse, and looked round to make sure of his bearings.

"It ought to be close handy here," he said. "Yes—I've got it."

He pushed on to a small bosky dell which led into a series of old crag-pits, masked with brambles. Almee wondered how he could find his way so confidently in the dark; she had not the remotest idea where she was.

"Wait here a minute. I'll come back for you," said Billy.

He wheeled the Sphinx away along a scarcely visible path, and presently returned without it.

"I was fooling around here on an off day, first time I came to Stanhoe," he said, "an' I lit on something that's goin' to be mighty useful. The old Sphinx has got to disappear for a bit, an' you'll soon understand why. Follow behind; there's only room for one at a time."

He led the way through the brambles and, pressing ahead, turned on the light of his pocket torch cautiously. Almee, close at his heels, presently found herself in the entrance of a sandy cave with a very small mouth, screened by rough creeper and brush.

"There's several of these around here," said Billy, "but this is one you don't find unless you hunt for it with a sounding pole. It's a heap quieter spot than the high roads tonight. Suppose we sit down."

They seated themselves on the powdered crag in the cave's mouth.

"It's time to show down our hands, partner," said Billy. "Do you mind putting me wise? Don't leave anything out. I want the facts."

Almee was silent some moments. She found it difficult to begin.

"It was like this, Billy."

She plunged into the tale, and went through it from beginning to end—leaving out nothing. It took some time. She could hardly see Billy in the gloom. He made no comments; he was so silent that sometimes she wondered if he was there. Billy was, for a time, too flabbergasted to speak.

At the finish, she heard a stifled, grunting noise, a sense of something shaking. It seemed to touch a spring in Almee. She bowed her head on her knees and laughed till her cheeks were wet.

"Haven't I torn it!" she moaned. "And I downed Cousin Alexander—and the butler's got yards of my skirt!"

Billy wiped his eyes with his sleeves. "An' you can laugh," he said, with intense delight, "after all that! Gee, but you're the stuff! Sand right through. You're all right. As long as you can laugh, the Red Gods'll stand by you! An' so will I. I'm one of 'em."

THIS THREE OF A KIND CAN WIN FOR SOX

By Norman E. Brown

Three young, optimistic pitchers who will hit south with the Chicago White Sox a few days hence may unknowingly hold the American League championship scramble in the hollows of their respective pitching hands.

These three snappy dressers are Charley Robertson, Ted and Homer Blankenship.

Why leave Gorham Leverette out, some one shouts. Wait a minute. Last year Urban Faber carried the burden. This veteran led the league in holding the opposition down and hung up 21 victories. Next on the team came Gorham Leverette. This youngster virtually stepped out of the rookie class by the dependable way he handled himself. Under various and assorted trying conditions he turned in 13 victories for Gleason while losing but 10 games. He must be counted a sure bet.

The three men first mentioned formed the rest of Gleason's staff last year. Charley Robertson started out his career like a house afire and early in the year pitched a no-hit game. He failed, however, to drop into a steady stride after that and as a result did not prove a consistent winner, while he lost 15.

Ted Blankenship was an added starter. He won 8 games after joining the team and lost 10. Lack of dependable mates at that time, however, forced Gleason to overwork him. Little brother Homer joined the team near the close of the season and so did not have full opportunity to show his wares. He did indicate, however, that he is a comer.

Gleason knows what to expect from Faber and Leverette. But the status of the other three, Robertson and the Blankenship boys, is still in doubt. If they deliver as they indicated at times last season they will be sitting mighty pretty. It will be hard to turn the White Sox back with stellar pitching from such a quintet.

So a weighty responsibility rests on the pitching shoulders of this trio of kids, the Blankenships and Mr. Robertson.

spell, and like a fool I let 'em get away," he said. "I guess I didn't get all the goods, but this looks like an ace flush to me."

"How splendid you are!" cried Almee, a catch in her voice. "Why, those will be the Lambe emeralds. I've heard of them—everybody has. They belong to my Aunt Erythea!"

"Then I shouldn't wonder if they scooped the jack-pot. But there's some high cards out against us. See here. We had to run for it. Here's the police prancin' over the country after a man and a woman on a motorcycle—for I guess they must be wise to it. Here's me with the stuff in my pocket, and you with a dress sample in the hands of the sleuth-hounds. Been the station-house for ours, if they'd got us just now—an' there'd be too much explaining to do. We'd have hit the cells for the night, sure. No place for you, partner. And all the newspapers spreading themselves over it."

"I know. It's fearful!"

"Not a bit!" cried Billy. "For now you can get in ahead of the cops. Don't you see? Put your folks wise to it—lay down all your cards. You're Lord Scroope's daughter—you ain't a burglar. Give it them straight. I'll stand by an' see you through."

"But—I can't, Billy! I'll all have to come out, then. Every bit of it," said Almee with a gasp.

"Why, of course it will! It was bound to come out anyway, soon or late. You didn't think you could keep up this Jervaux racket? I don't see any way you could do that. But you can keep it in the family. You've got to face the music."

There was a long pause.

"I—can't," said Almee, scarcely audibly.

Billy was amazed. If it had not been so dark—and an incredible supposition in any case—he would have supposed from her voice that she was crying.

"You aren't afraid?" he said wonderingly.

"Of a row? No! It isn't that." Billy sat down beside her.

"What is it then, partner?" he said gently.

"I never thought of it—till George told me," said Almee in stifled tones.

"Told you what?" he answered quietly. "What's the trouble?"

"About staying there. I—Ivy cottage!"

Billy moved slightly.

"I—I don't quite get you," he said. "I can't tell Dad!" Almee put her hands over her eyes and burst into tears. "I daren't! Billy, what am I to do!"

England in War Over Holding of Sports on Sunday

LONDON.—The playing of games on Sunday, such as cricket and football, by London's masses has become the subject of controversy, and a movement is under way to put a stop to it. Professional football and cricket leagues in England do not schedule games on Sunday as do the baseball teams of America, and it was only last July that the London County Council sanctioned Sunday games played by amateurs in the parks. At that time the council felt that the bulk of public opinion favored Sunday sports, and decided to give them a

Contest for Honors at C. E. Convention to be Over Quotas

SHAWNEE, Okla., Feb. 26.—Contests for honors at the state Christian Endeavor convention here June 6 to 10, will center around the quotas of delegates sent by different churches, according to Harold Singer, field secretary for the state.

Quotas are to be fixed by the state executive committee, Singer explained, and the local society which sends the greatest proportionate number of delegates above its quota will win. Honors will consist of a banner, first place in a parade at the convention, and other recognition, he said.

More than 1,000 delegates from the seventeen Oklahoma Endeavor districts are expected at the gathering. Approximately 800 attended the meetings at Ponca City last year, according to the field secretary.

The morning sessions of the convention will be devoted to conferences on different lines of Christian Endeavor work, at which concrete plans of action for the coming year will be laid. There will be demonstration work in the afternoon, and the evening sessions are to be inspirational.

Saturday afternoon, June 9, has been set aside for recreation, and all delegates will be invited to go to Benson park, where a recreational director will have charge for the afternoon.

The convention will open with an evening meeting June 6 and close with the evening session of June 10. State President Howard Tamuly will preside over all general sessions, and internationally known speakers and Christian Endeavor workers will address the gathering. Special days have been set aside for the intermediate and junior departments.

Helping the Dealer to Sell

Every manufacturer appreciates, in some degree, the importance of helping the retailer sell his product. And yet in many instances that degree is very small. It can hardly be compared in importance—so thinks a certain type of manufacturer—with selling the product to the dealer.

It is nothing short of a false assumption, unsound and untrustworthy, to think that merely stocking up the dealer with a product constitutes effective distribution. Effort of that kind, it is true, may dispose of a lot of goods, but it does not sell them. Unless the consumer comes in prepared or disposed to buy them they will remain on the shelf of the dealer, re-orders will be impossible, and the whole product will be a failure.

The safest alternative is for the manufacturer to create a consumer demand through Advertising. This will help the dealer move the goods, and then he will order more.

Advertising is as much a basic part of the business of the manufacturer of any specific trademarked product as is production and distribution. It is not something that can be considered merely as an expense to be curtailed to the minimum. It is a creative influence which, more than any other thing after the merit of the product, determines the extent of the consumer demand.

Too often the manufacturer thinks of his advertising as a clever means of impressing the dealer with the desirability of stocking up with his goods, and he does enough to accomplish that effect, and then expects the dealer to move the goods. This is a mistaken use of advertising and it quickly re-acts upon the manufacturer.

It is the business of the dealer to provide the goods which the public demand. He would be foolish to do otherwise, and would soon cease to be a dealer. It is the business of the manufacturer—meaning specifically, the manufacturer of a trade-marked article, or one that might be trade-marked—to create a consumer demand by means of Advertising.

Postoffice Department, in Final Warning, Declares Public Must Get Mail Box

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Will you have your mail delivered at your front door, or will you call at the postoffice for it? That is the question city dwellers, who have not equipped their residences with some receptacle in which the postman can deliver mail, will have confronting them Wednesday, March 1, according to John H. Bartlett, first assistant postmaster general.

"The crusade of the post office department for the installation of mail boxes or door-slots at front doors of all dwellings in the United States is not founded upon a capricious whim," says Mr. Bartlett. "Neither did it originate out of an unwarranted desire to arbitrarily increase the burden of expense of American householders by compelling them to buy this additional equipment for their homes."

"The movement is entirely in the interest of good administration, sound economy and the best service to the public. Six months ago when this plan was first promulgated seventy percent of the dwellings of the country already had mail boxes or door-slots to facilitate the delivery of mails. The question naturally arose that if seventy percent of the American people had provided receptacles, why shouldn't the other thirty per cent likewise comply? The result was a decision to start a campaign with this object in view, of inducing the delinquent thirty per cent to supply this deficiency, giving them a reasonable and ample period of time in which to install such receptacles."

"In some quarters the idea prevails that this is a 'No box—No mail' proposition. Nothing could be more erroneous. There is no intention at all upon the part of the post office department of shutting off any patron's mail. On the contrary, the question involved is whether dwellers in the various cities want to have their mail delivered at their front doors, or whether they prefer to call at the post office to get it. They may, of course, choose either alternative. If they want their mail delivered, all they have to do is to put up a receptacle at their front door. If not, they may forego the installation of the receptacle and call at the post office and their mail will be waiting there for them."

Helpful to Government.
"Not only will the installation of these conveniences at the homes of all citizens result in the saving of millions of dollars annually to the government, but the public will reap untold benefits and countless hours of time, now spent in answering door bells when letter carriers call to deliver mail, will no longer be wasted."

"That the post office department has ample legal authority upon which to regulate under what conditions mail shall be delivered by letter carriers is undisputed. The statute inaugurating free delivery of mail matter specifically states that the postmaster general may establish receiving boxes for the deposit of mail matter.

"About 35,000 carriers are engaged in the delivery of mail. The number of trips range from two to six, the average being about three. The average number of delivery stops on a residential route is approximately 300. Each carrier delivers mail to an average of 200 stops daily and the use of a mail receptacle will save him a quarter of a minute at each stop or 50 minutes a day. The use of mail receptacles in the delivery of mail is not an experiment, but experience has shown it is an advantage to the patron and actually effects a saving of the carrier's time, which is usable in extending service."

"With the institution of rural delivery service, the delivery of mail was contingent upon patrons providing mail receptacles at the roadside of the route traversed by the carrier, and, at a very early date, it was required that such receptacles should be of a type approved by the department. There appears to be no reason why, in the city delivery service also, the delivery of mail should not be contingent upon the provision of a door slot or other receptacle in which the carrier may effect delivery of the mail. No particular kind of mail receptacle is prescribed. The simplest box or door slot is satisfactory. The expense is small."

"But a few days remain now for householders who have not placed a receptacle at their front doors to decide whether they prefer to have their mail delivered at their homes or whether they want to go to their local post offices to get it. There is nothing compulsory nor mandatory about the proposition. It is up to the householder entirely and he may take his choice."

CHRISTOPHER BRAMBLE, of Brooklyn, Retired Chief Quartermaster U. S. Navy, who says his determination to try Tanlac was the wisest decision he ever made as the medicine completely restored his health.

Christopher Bramble, 782 Monroe St., Brooklyn, N. Y., Chief Quartermaster U. S. Navy, retired, is now an ardent champion of the merits of Tanlac.

"I'll stand by Tanlac to the very last," declared Mr. Bramble, "for it has helped me back on my feet and I am feeling like a new man now. I had suffered from stomach trouble for two years and was in an awful run-down condition. My appetite went back on me and when I did eat a little something I would suffer pain and misery for hours. My nerves were all out of fix. I would lie awake tossing and rolling until almost day, and felt weak and tired all the time. I had no energy to do anything and just felt any way, but right."

"Well, I just kept on losing weight and getting worse until I concluded to try Tanlac, and that was the wisest decision I ever made. It's the only medicine I ever saw that does all they say it will. I now eat three hearty meals a day and never feel a touch of indigestion, and my appetite was never better, even when I was a school boy. My sleep is sound and restful and I get up mornings feeling refreshed and fine. My weight has increased and I have been built up until I never felt better in my life. If anybody doubts this statement just let them see me."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists. Over 35-million bottles sold. Adv.

MORE ENERGY IN BREAD THAN MEAT

DR. HARVEY W. WILEY IN HIS GARDEN IN WASHINGTON ON HIS 75TH BIRTHDAY

"There is more energy in a pound of bread than in a pound of meat."

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley is given as the authority for this statement, showing bread is the most wholesome and economical of all foods. Some scientists qualify this by saying it depends on the bread.

Do you use baking soda instead of yeast in making bread? This is a dangerous thing to do, it is said, because unless the soda is neutralized by an acid, such as sour milk, it apparently destroys the vitamin of the grain, thus increasing vitamin deficiency.

Do you put a pinch of baking soda in peas or beans when you are cooking them? It makes them nice and tender and preserves their fresh green color. But this presents a danger, for the soda has the same destructive effect upon the vitamin in the peas and beans that it does upon the grain in the bread.

Dr. Alfred C. Reed, of Stanford University Medical School, is the authority quoted in these attacks against the use of soda.

All of which is additional cause for the growing popularity of the little tin-foil-wrapped collection, yeast. It is because common yeast is known to be the food richest in vitamin, which modern milling and cooking methods are said to remove, that people are eating yeast to complete what in many cases would be an otherwise deficient diet.

Rotarians Celebrate on Eighteenth Anniversary Of Success Over World

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—With presidents, prime ministers, chief justices, and heads of national legislative bodies throughout the world contributing brief statements of their ideas of the responsibilities of the individual citizen for the kind of government he gets, ninety thousand members of Rotary International began a world wide campaign today for thorough understanding of these responsibilities as part of the celebration of the eighteenth anniversary of the founding of the first Rotary Club.

President Harding, Speaker Gillett of the House of Representatives and Attorney General Daugherty are the authors of the texts of the citizenship message Rotarians in the United States are carrying to the people of their communities. President Harding tells in his statement of the responsibilities of the individual citizen for the execution of the laws and declares no citizen can consider himself a good citizen who does not do all in his power to make careful selection from among the candidates for office and then vote for the person he has deliberately selected—which, the President remarks parenthetically, several million of the citizens of the United States regularly fail to vote at all.

Speaker Gillett also pleads for careful selection of the candidates for legislative office and states that the quick and the demagogue belong in the same category in that they arouse sympathy by telling the victim of his real troubles and then offer their own remedy as the only panacea for the trouble.

Attorney General Daugherty declares that constitutional government is not possible unless the individual citizen first acquaints himself with and obeys the law himself.

The three basic statements of the principles of citizenship being used in the United States are duplicated in similar messages from the heads of the main branches of government in most of the twenty-four countries in which Rotary Clubs have been established. The educational work the Rotarians are doing has nothing to do with partisan politics nor are the statements from the three distinguished government officials partisan. They are devoted entirely to the broad principle of the responsibilities of citizenship.

The text messages are being used in addresses to schools, industrial plants, civic organizations, etc., wherever the Rotarians think they can find a good audience. They are being broadcasted from thousands of radio stations and will form the subject of talks at every Rotary meeting during the week.

The first Rotary Club was organized in Chicago, February 23, 1906. There are now 1325 Rotary Clubs with a membership of approximately 90,000 in twenty-seven countries. The clubs are organized for the purpose of practicing and spreading the principles of service through the adoption of codes of ethical practices in all lines of business and professions, through work among boys to prepare them for citizenship and through utilizing the service idea in aiding and abetting all worthy causes for the general good of the communities in which the clubs are established.

In the South Dakota elections Miss Gladys Pyle, the state's first woman legislator, was chosen to the legislature with a plurality of 2,156 votes which was 250 more than any other candidate in the state received.
